

The RAPID Consortium is a public-private partnership of the U.S. Government, private industry and NGOs. RAPID is focused on developing advanced packaging and delivery technologies for injectable drugs and vaccines to strengthen bio-emergency response in America and worldwide.

Mission Statement

To stimulate research, development, and application of blow-fill-seal technology to strengthen surge capacity and response capabilities for pandemics and other public health emergencies.

About Us

Born from a partnership between private industry and the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response (ASPR), part of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), the RAPID Consortium looks to explore how modern drug packaging and delivery technologies, such as Blow-Fill-Seal and others, can strengthen national security and emergency response. RAPID members may propose research projects that the Consortium may choose to submit to the U.S. Government through its Other Transaction Authority Agreement (OTAA) with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

U.S. Government's Role

The U.S. Government provides advice and consultation to RAPID. Responsible U.S. agency leaders also evaluate proposed R&D projects that RAPID puts forward from its Members for potential U.S. Government funding.

Member Benefits

Any company, non-profit, or other organization that shares RAPID's mission is invited to apply for membership. Membership in RAPID provides significant opportunities for industry leadership, technology advances, and growth, including:

- Submit and join R&D projects that enhance surge capacity and bio-emergency response for the U.S. Government and allied nations
- Network with leading organizations and leaders
- Potentially obtain partial government funding for mission-relevant R&D
- Establish a leadership reputation for national health emergency response
- Help strengthen critical U.S. biomedical supply chains
- Part ownership of IP that your organization co-develops with the U.S.

Legal Status

The RAPID Consortium is a non-profit 501(c)6 organization. It was formed as a public-private partnership created under an OTAA with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
